

FAMILY DISPUTE RESOLUTION PRACTITIONER (bridging course)
offered by Australian Institute For Relationship Studies (AIRS).

Starts March 8th 2014.

Are you looking to gain registration as a Family Dispute Resolution Practitioner (FDR) and attain National Mediator Accreditation – then AIRS has right course for you.

AIRS is the first and only education provider to offer this unique course in NSW which enables you to obtain a nationally recognised Statement of Attainment – the six core units from the nationally recognised qualification CHC80308 Vocational Graduate Diploma of Family Dispute Resolution this allows you to register as a FDRP (Family Dispute Resolution Practitioner) with the Attorney General’s Department and a National Mediator accreditation through the Institute of Dispute Resolution (IDR).

The course being a unique opportunity to obtain educational requirements required to register with the Attorney General’s Department as a FRD practitioner spaces are limited, email (traceyl@ransw.org.au) or call us on (02) 8874 8090 today to register for the course.

Applications Close: Friday 28th February.

More details regarding the course can be obtained by visiting our courses (<http://www.airs.edu.au/course/fdr-bridging-course/>) section on AIRS’s website (<http://www.airs.edu.au>).

Why AIRS?

- Obtain a supervised 10 hour work placement with a RANSW mediation service
- Learn from experts in relationship studies
- Foster ongoing collaborative networking experiences for exchanging ideas